

*Sub
D
+ C*
personal body information is entered using said data input device after measuring the weight; [and] a weight sensor of said weight meter is connected to said CPU; and said CPU estimates the body composition of the person under test based upon the personal body information, the weight measured prior to entering the personal body information,

[an output of said weight meter] and data from [said input device and] said impedance measurement device.